

024 — Post gdpr

Source: <https://www.nytimes.com/privacy/privacy-policy>

Length: 22,830 chars

The information we gather about you depends on the context. By and large, it's information about you that can personally identify you — either on its own or when combined with other information. The following describes the information we collect and how we obtain it. When you sign up for a Times Service (e.g., a subscription), we collect your contact information and account credentials. Once you're registered, we assign you a unique ID number. This ID number helps us recognize you when you're signed in. For some Times Services, you can instead sign up by linking your Apple, Facebook or Google account. See "From Other Sources" below. If you register for an event or conference, we might ask for additional information (e.g., your company name, your job title or your dietary restrictions). To process payments or donations, we collect and use your payment information. This can include your name, your address, your telephone number, your email address, your credit or debit card information and any other relevant information. We offer you the ability to post content that other users can read (e.g., comments or recipe reviews). Anyone can read, collect and use any personal information that accompanies your posts. See the Comments F.A.Q., or read "User-Generated Content" in our Terms of Service for more information. We do not have to publish any of your content. If the law requires us to take down, remove or edit your personal information, we will comply to the required extent. When you sign up for these, you give us your name, email and any other required information. We gather information through questionnaires, surveys and feedback programs. We also conduct similar research for advertisers. We ask you for your consent to use this information when you participate in these programs and events. We collect information from you when you place an order over the phone or contact customer service through one of our toll-free numbers. We never scan your device for your contacts or upload that data. With your consent, we do comply with your requests to collect data about your friends, family or acquaintances (e.g., Refer a Friend campaigns). This functionality is only meant for U.S. residents. By using it, you acknowledge and agree that both you and your contacts are based in the United States — and that you have everyone's consent for us to use their contact information. These technologies include cookies, web beacons, tags and scripts, software development kits (or SDKs) and beyond. We track and store data about how you visit and use Times Services, particularly through our websites and apps. The items we log include: We combine this data with other information we collect about you. For more information about tracking methods on Times Services, and how to manage them, read our Cookie Policy. If your browser doesn't accept our cookies, you can't access certain parts of our websites (e.g., your account on nytimes.com). Because the "Do Not Track" browser-based standard signal has yet to gain widespread acceptance, we don't currently respond to those signals. We however respond to the Global Privacy Control in certain territories, such as Europe and California. Some of our apps can provide content based on your GPS location, if you enable this feature (e.g., the New York Times Real Estate app). Your GPS location is your exact location. You choose whether to enable GPS features when you first install the app. You can edit that setting on your device at any time. If you enable these features, your GPS location can be found by satellite, cell phone tower or Wi-Fi and used by the app. If you save a location-based search in your history, that data moves to our service provider's servers — see below for the definition of service provider. If you do not enable GPS location-based services, or if a specific app does not have location-based features (e.g., the New York Times app), we don't collect your precise GPS location. We do collect your IP address, which can establish your approximate location. Ads on our sites and apps may be targeted based on this approximate location, but are never targeted based on your GPS location. Marketing, data analytic and social media-owned databases give us access to a range of information — like public data, survey data and beyond. This data sometimes includes your mailing address, your gender, your age, your household income and other demographic data. (Social media platforms include Facebook. Third-party services include Google and Nook.) You can link your social media or other third-party account to a Times Service. By linking the services, you authorize us to collect, store and use any information they may give us (e.g., your email address) . You can disconnect your nytimes.com registration from third-party accounts at any time. We also receive information from you when you interact with our pages, groups, accounts or posts on social media platforms. This includes aggregate data on our followers (e.g., age, gender and location) , engagement data (e.g., “likes,” comments, shares, reposts and clicks) , awareness data (e.g., number of impressions and reach) and individual users’ public profiles. For more information, refer to our social login and Nook F.A.Q. When your employer or school buys an organizationwide subscription to nytimes.com, they sometimes provide us with your name and organization email address to grant you access as a user. We are always improving our products and services, and we create new features regularly. These updates sometimes require us to collect new information, or use what we already have differently. If there is a significant or material change in the way we handle your personal information, we will notify you as detailed below. Back to top 2. We use your information to help you use and navigate Times Services, such as: We track your interests and reading habits (e.g., the articles you read) to personalize your reading experience using technology like algorithmic recommendations and machine learning. This is how we highlight articles you might be interested in and de-emphasize articles you’ve already read. For more information about content personalization on Times Services, you can read the Personalization F.A.Q. We also show you prices, promotions, products or services we believe you’ll find interesting, based on demographic and usage data. Any information you disclose in your content becomes public — along with your chosen screen name and uploaded photo. We analyze data on our users’ subscription, purchase and usage behaviors. This helps us make business and marketing decisions. For example, our analysis lets us predict preferences and price points for our products and services. It helps us determine whether our marketing is successful. It also shows us characteristics about our readers, which we sometimes share in aggregate with advertisers. Google Analytics is one of the analytics providers we use. You can find out how Google Analytics uses data and how to opt out of Google Analytics . The above activities can involve outside companies, agents or contractors (“service providers”) with whom we share your personal information for these purposes (discussed further below). You can take part in our sweepstakes, contests and other promotions. Some might have additional rules about how we use and disclose your personal information. We gather data and work with third parties to show you personalized ads on behalf of advertisers. This data comes from ad tracking technologies set by us or the third party (e.g., cookies) , the information you provide (e.g., your email address) , your use of Times Services (e.g., your reading history) , information from advertisers or advertising vendors (e.g., demographic data) and anything inferred from any of this information. We only use or share this information in a manner that does not reveal your identity. For example, we use Google to serve ads on Times Services. Google uses cookies or unique device identifiers, in combination with their own data, to show you ads based on you visiting nytimes.com and other sites. You can opt out of the use of the Google cookie by visiting the related Google privacy policy . We also identify groups of users to whom to serve personalized ads on behalf of our advertisers. To do this, we combine information we collect through surveys or registration with information we collect automatically using tracking technologies while you browse our sites and apps. This combined information is used to build models. These data models are then used to measure users’ attributes, like their demographic information or their interests. Working with service providers, we use these measurements to group users by common attributes. Each group is associated with a random ID which is then passed to our ad server for use in targeting ad campaigns on our sites and apps. Another example is our affiliate link vendors, which we use in our guides and product recommendations. Times Services include links that will send you to vendor URLs and other services not operated or controlled by us. These vendors use cookies and other technologies to collect information about your navigation from the Times Services to the merchant you are visiting. If you buy a product after following a link to a link vendor’s URL, we may earn a commission. For more about targeted advertising, and how to opt out with your specific browser and device, go to the DAA Webchoices Browser Check and NAI Opt Out of Interest-Based Advertising . You can download the AppChoices app to opt out in mobile apps. You can also follow the instructions in the We market our properties to you. Sometimes we use marketing vendors to do this. We serve ads through websites, locations, platforms and services operated and owned by third parties. Often these ads are targeted at people who have visited or registered for a Times Service but have not subscribed or purchased anything. The ads are also targeted at people with similar traits or behaviors to our subscribers or customers. We target our advertising to these users by uploading an encrypted customer list to a third party, or by incorporating a tracking technology from a third party onto our Times Service. The third party then matches individuals who appear in both our data and their data. Because of how this matching process works, the third party can't read our encrypted customer list if they don't already have it. To opt out of receiving these matched ads, contact the applicable third parties. For example, when we use "Custom Audience" to serve you our ad through Facebook, you should be able to hover over the box in the right corner of that Facebook ad and opt out. We are not responsible for any third party's failure to comply with opt-out requests. We periodically send you targeted email newsletters or promotional emails. For information on opting out of these emails, see Sometimes we aggregate or de-identify information so that it can no longer identify you, under applicable laws. This helps us better understand and represent our users, such as when we measure ad performance, create advertising interest-based segments or compile survey results. We can use and disclose this aggregated or de-identified information for any purpose, unless an applicable law says otherwise. Back to top 3. We share your information with our affiliates for the purposes listed here. See a list of our affiliates. We work with service providers, as defined above, to carry out certain tasks: When performing these tasks, service providers often have access to your personal information. We sometimes allow them to use aggregated or de-identified information for other purposes, in accordance with applicable laws. There are situations when we share your information with third parties beyond our service providers. We never share your email address with these third parties without your consent, except in encrypted form to engage in the matched ads process described above. The opt-out methods described below are limited to the email address, phone or device used. They won't affect subsequent subscriptions. We offer a variety of commercial emails and email newsletters. You can unsubscribe from them by following the "unsubscribe" instructions near the bottom of the email. You can also email us at privacy@nytimes.com. You can manage your nytimes.com newsletter preferences. You can ask us to unsubscribe from our mail or telephone solicitations. You can also ask us to not share your information with third parties for marketing purposes. To do so, call us at 1-800-698-4637 or chat with us. You may also email us at privacy@nytimes.com with "Opt Out" in the subject line, and your account number and phone number in the body of the email. For International Edition customers, you can write us at: The New York Times International Edition, Subscription Dept. 18 Museum Street, London, WC1A 1JN, United Kingdom. Please include your account number and phone number in the body of the letter. You can opt out any time by adjusting your device settings, or uninstalling our app. You can opt out of text alerts any time by replying "STOP," or any alternative keyword we've shared with you. We complete any opt-out request as quickly as we can. This opt-out request won't prohibit us from sending you important nonmarketing notices. B) How Do You Access, Change, Delete, Update or Exercise Your Other Rights in Relation to Your Personal Information? In some parts of the world, you have the right to: You have the right to object to the processing of your personal information based on our legitimate interest or that of a third party — unless we demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing of, or the keeping of, your personal information for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims. If you'd like to exercise any of the above rights, contact us via this form or by calling us at our toll-free number, 1-800-NYTIMES. In your request, please be specific. State the information you want changed, whether you'd like your information suppressed from our database or whether there are limitations you'd like us to put on how we use your personal information. Please use the email address linked to that personal information — we only complete requests on the information linked to your email address. To verify your identity, we will email the email address you provide us, and which matches our records, and wait for your response. In some instances we may also ask for additional information. This is how we verify your identity before complying. You can designate an authorized agent to make a request on your behalf. In order to do that, please provide the agent with written permission, signed by you, authorizing the agent to submit the request on your behalf. The agent must submit that written permission along with the request. We will contact you to verify your identity — and the authorized agent's permission — before a response to the request is sent. We'll respond to your request in a manner consistent with applicable law. We might need to keep certain information for recordkeeping purposes, or to complete a transaction you began prior to requesting a change or deletion (e.g., if you make a purchase or enter a promotion, you might not be able to change or delete the personal information provided until after the completion of the purchase or promotion) . In some cases, your request doesn't ensure complete removal of the content or information (e.g., if another user has reposted your content) . If you'd like, you can lodge a complaint with a data protection authority. A list of E.U. data protection authorities is available. You can update your account information and see your transaction history (for International Edition print subscribers). If you need assistance, call our toll-free number, 1-800-NYTIMES. Other local numbers are available. It works differently if you subscribed via Apple's App Store or Google Play. Register with us to access the Account area, and contact Apple or Google for your transaction history. Back to top 5. We generally don't want to gather any sensitive information about you. This includes: There are rare situations when we request this information (e.g., a reader survey asks about your political leanings) , but you can decline to answer. Outside those situations we would prefer you never share that information with us. Back to top 6. It depends. We store your personal information for as long as needed, or permitted, based on the reason why we obtained it (consistent with applicable law). This means we might retain your personal information even after you close your account with us. When deciding how long to keep your information, we consider: We protect your personal information with a series of organizational, technological and physical safeguards — but we cannot guarantee its absolute security. We recommend that you use complex and unique passwords for your Times accounts and for third-party accounts linked to them. Do not share your password with anyone. If you have reason to believe your interaction with us is no longer secure, notify us immediately. Back to top 8. Times Services are intended for a general audience, and are not directed at children under (13) years of age. We do not knowingly gather personal information (as defined by the U.S. Children's Privacy Protection Act, or COPPA) in a manner not permitted by COPPA. If you are a parent or guardian and you believe we have collected information from your child in a manner not permitted by law, contact us at privacy@nytimes.com . We will remove the data to the extent required by applicable laws. Back to top 9. The New York Times Company is headquartered in the United States. If you are located outside the United States, your information is collected in your country and then transferred to the United States — or to another country in which we (or our affiliates or service providers) operate. If we transfer your data out of the European Economic Area (E.E.A.), we implement at least one of the three following safeguards: In certain situations, the courts, law enforcement agencies, regulatory agencies or security authorities in those countries might be entitled to access your personal information. Back to top 10. In some jurisdictions, like the European Union and the European Economic Area, we only collect, use or share information about you when we have a valid reason. This is called "lawful basis." Specifically, this is one of the following: Some Times Services contain links to third-party websites, resources, vendors and advertisers. These third parties are not Times Services. We do not control (and are not responsible for) third party content or privacy practices. Any personal data you provide to them is not covered by this Privacy Policy. Back to top 12. We periodically update this Privacy Policy. We will post any changes on this page by updating this policy. If we make a significant or material change in the way we collect, use or share your personal information, we will notify you at least 30 days prior to the changes taking effect. We will do this via email or prominent notice within Times Services. If you object to any change, you can stop using the Times Services. After we post any changes on this page, your continued use of Times Services is subject to the updated Privacy Policy. Back to top 13. If you have any questions, email us at privacy@nytimes.com or write us at: The New York Times Company 620 Eighth Avenue New York, N.Y. 10018 Attn.: Privacy Counsel We can also be reached by phone at 1-800-NYTIMES (see a list of our local telephone numbers outside the United States). The New York Times Company is referred to in this Privacy Policy as "The Times," "we" or "our." Certain Times Services operate as independent controllers of your personal information. Wirecutter operates as an independent controller of personal information collected through the Wirecutter site available at nytimes.com/wirecutter, pages or ads on social media networks, email messages sent by Wirecutter, your offline contacts and any other service offered by Wirecutter (collectively, the "Wirecutter Services"). If you have any questions regarding Wirecutter, email us at privacy@thewirecutter.com or write us at: Wirecutter, Inc. c/o The New York Times Company 620 Eighth Avenue New York, N.Y. 10018 Attn.: Privacy Counsel Wirecutter operates the Wirecutter Services in accordance with the practices disclosed in this Privacy Policy. With respect to the Wirecutter Services, Wirecutter, Inc. is referred to in this Privacy Policy as included in “The Times,” “we” or “our.” In this Privacy Policy, Wirecutter Services are included under “Times Services.”

Back to top

What Information Do We Gather About You?

A) Information Collected Through Times Services. Information You Voluntarily Give Us For Registration: For Billing: For User-Generated Content: For Contests, Sweepstakes and Special Offers: For Reader Surveys, Research, Panels and Experience Programs: During Contact With Our Call Centers: Personal Contacts Data: Information Collected Automatically With Tracking Technologies in Your Browser and Mobile Apps: With GPS Technologies: B) Information Collected From Other Sources. Privately Owned Databases: Social Media Platforms and Other Third-Party Services: Workplace and Schools: A note about future updates: What Do We Do With The Information We Collect About You? A) We provide the Times Services. B) We Personalize Your Experience. C) We Allow You to Share User-Generated Content. D) We Develop Products and Services, and Do Analysis. E) We Carry Out Administrative Tasks. F) We Offer Sweepstakes, Contests and Other Promotions. G) We Allow for Personalized Advertising on Times Services and Create Audiences for Third-Party Advertisers. Additional notes: H) We Advertise Times Services to You. I) We Aggregate (or De-identify) Personal Information Into Larger Findings. With Whom Do We Share the Information We Gather? A) Within The New York Times Company: B) With Service Providers: C) With Other Third Parties: What Are Your Rights? A) How Do I Opt Out of Email, Phone, Mail and Push Notifications? Email: Mail or Telephone Promotions: Push Notifications: Text Messages: C) How Do You Manage Your Digital and Home Delivery Accounts? What About Sensitive Personal Information? How Long Do You Retain Data? How Do You Protect My Information? Are There Guidelines for Children? How Is Information Transferred Internationally? What Is Our Legal Basis? What About Links to Third-Party Services? How Are Changes to This Privacy Policy Communicated? How Can You Contact Us? Who Is the Controller of Your Personal Information?